DIGNITY OF THE COURT.

An Incident of History at Mayville N. Y., Fifty Years Ago.

At the last term of court a Chautauque County lawyer sent a post card containing a picture of the Mayville courthouse to a lawyer who had been a student in this county nearly half a century ago, and received the following in reply. The answer discloses a standard of dignity on the part of the bench so far below anything that would be tolerated in these times that we are almost forced to admit that the world is improving:

"Thank you for the picture of the Chautauque courthouse. My first visit to it was about forty-seven or forty-eight years ago. Judge George Barker, then a practicing lawyer, went to Mayville on Monday and on Wednesday I followed. The first thing that I saw upon the bench as I entered the court-room was a pair of muddy boots near the end of the desk, and a moment later a round face looking like a full moon appeared near the other end.

"The whole outfit belonged to Judge Martin Grover. He was really sitting upon his back with his heels on the bench. He had got off some joke and laughing had sunk so low in his chair that he had quite disappeared and now was gradually rising. We became good friends later on and I learned, too, the unwisdom of judging by appearances, but as a boy I was not much impressed by what I saw then."—From the Jamestown (N. Y.) Evening Journal.

ON WATCH FOR NEW TOWNS.

Rapid Growth Necessitates Carefulness on Part of Train Crew.

Appropos of the mushroom growth of new towns on the western frontier, a locomotive engineer relates the following:

"One day I was driving my engine across the prairie when, suddenly, a considerable town loomed up ahead, where nothing had showed up the day before.

"What town's this?" says I to my fireman.

"Blamed if I know," says Bill. It wasn't here when we went over the road yesterday."

"Well, I slowed down and directly we pulled into the station where over 500 people were waiting on the platform to see the first train come in.

"The conductor came along up front and says to me:

"Jim, first we know we'll be running by some important place. Get this town down on your list and I'll put a brakeman out on the rear platform to watch out for towns that spring up after the train gets by."

Politest People on Earth.

It has been said that the French are the most polite people in the world, writes a lady in San Sebastian, but my personal opinion is that the Spaniards can beat him.

If you ask your way in the street, of some ordinary woman, she will almost certainly go out of her way to accompany you down the street and to carefully put you on the right road. The Spaniards are very cheerful and gay, but they are never vulgar—as we understand the word. Even the men in the streets who stand and frankly stare at a pretty girl do it in a light hearted, pleasant way which does not give offense. As to the manners of Spanish men belonging to the best society, they are almost perfect.

Watch a Spaniard of distinction address his mother or any elderly lady and you will see a manner which is tender and caressing, and at the same time exquisitely protective.

Freer Family Exchanges.

Wishing to find out along what lines his 12-year-old son's ambition ran, William D. Freer, sporting editor of the Hartford 'Courier', asked his boy what he intended to be when he grew older. The boy replied that he hadn't got the least of the situation. Thinking that he might be a chip of the old block, Mr. Freer said to his son: "How would you like to be a reporter?" "Not that kind of work for me, dad," Freer, Jr., answered, appearing highly insulted.

The father laughed and said: "Well, you know, my boy, it takes a man of brains to become a reporter."

Looking sharply at his "dad," the youngster quickly replied: "Well, if that is the case, how under the sun did you ever turn out to be a reporter?"

"Father" Taylor's Correction.

"Father" Taylor, one Sunday, explained the true meaning of the word philanthropy, and announced that a collection would be taken up the following Sunday, in aid of the poor of the district.

Evidently the collection fell short of his expectations the following Sunday, for before the close of the meeting, he said:

"Last Sunday I explained to you that the word philanthropy meant the love of our species, but you must have understood me to say specie, which probably accounts for the small collection, and you will prove, I hope, that you are no longer laboring under this mistake!"

Had the Same Result.

In a Georgia town where prohibition prevails a man was arrested three times in one day, charged with being drunk on the streets.

"Where did you get the whisky?" asked the mayor.

"I didn't drink no whisky," was the reply. "Nuthin' in the world," yer honor, 'cept cane juice, liver regulator, hair tonic, an' red ink!"—Pittsburg Press.

History of the Dime.

That neat and lovable little coin, the dime, has had a most useful history. As far as we are aware it is unique among the world's coins, having no nearer equivalent than the English six pence, which is worth two cents more. It is one of the handiest of coins, being about as small as a silver piece can conveniently be. Being less in size and weight than the nickel, which is worth only half as much, it is vastly more convenient to keep and hoard, and that is one reason why it is becoming extraordinarily scarce in spite of the fact that more dimes are now turned out of the mints than ever before in the country's history. There is a large race for "dime banks," and some of these mechanical contrivances are so pretty, so ingenious and so alluring that they force people to save dimes who have no earthly occasion to do so.

Singular Austrian Law.

A few days ago the murderer of Mr. Reid, the Paisley man who mysteriously disappeared from Heidelberg last July, having been arrested in Austria, was tried at Feldkirch and was convicted and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment.

The case illustrates a singularity of the Austrian criminal law. Generally speaking, a premeditated murder is punishable by death in Austria, but it cases where between the time of the murder and the arrest the prisoner has been punished for some other crime a sentence of capital punishment cannot be passed upon him.

In this case the murderer had served a week's imprisonment for petty theft about January of this year, and to this circumstance alone he is indebted for his life.

Bird in the Hand.

On a cabbage patch owned by a negro in a southern community oil was found. Speculators offered the negro $20,000, which was accepted without waiting to consider another proposition, said to be worth $40,000.

"What is this about your cabbage patch?" inquired a neighbor of the negro. "I understand you have sold it for $20,000."

"Yes, that's true, boss," replied the negro. "You see, men come picking round my place, an' dey say dar's oil heah. Dey say: 'We gib yo' $20,000.' I say: 'All right.'"

"I am told if you had waited a day or two you might have sold it for $40,000."

"Yes, dat mebbe so; but a bird in the han's th' nobles' wuk of God!"

Cotton Long Known.

The manufacture of cotton in India dates back to its earliest history. There are allusions to it connected with India in the Bible. In old Sanscrit records mention is made of its being used in India nearly 3,000 years ago. At the time of Alexander's invasion of India the dress of the Hindus was described as consisting largely of calicos, pure white or having figures. Among the imports into Europe during the first century, enumerated from India are described as of superior quality.

On Tact.

Chancellor James R. Day was once advising a young undergraduate of Syracuse university to cultivate tact. "But, alas," he said, "I fear that advice on such a subject must always be wasted. On tact the last word was spoken by Barbey d'Aureville when he said:

"If tact could be bought, only those already possessed of it would want to buy it."

New Extension Is Completed.

The Burlington-Great Northern extension to Ashland, Wis., has been completed, and a third service is now being maintained. Full operations will not be started for at least a month. This extension opens the Burlington connection with Lake Superior, and opens a new route for Nebraska grain to the Atlantic seaboard.

The Idea.

"Pop."

"Yes, my son."

"When a fellow goes to a circus and gets red lencuade and jammy, can't he have to give money for 'em?"

"Certainly he does, my boy."

"Well, this paper says here that money won't buy happiness."

When the Damage Happens.

If a cut bleeds profusely it should be held under a stream of cold water, compress the wound and apply clean lint. If an artery has been severed the lint then above the cut and by introducing a stick under the handkerchief and twisting it round check the bleeding until surgical assistance can be obtained.

Significant Facts.

There remain the facts, however, that more passengers are killed in trains and derailments than in any other way, and that about two-thirds of the collisions occur on railroads where black-and-white and by reason of errors which do not occur in black-and-white.—N. Y. Press.

Good Reason.

Jones—Why did you give that woman on the car your seat and leave your wife standing?

Browne—Great Scott, man! that was our cook!—Judge.

A Certainty.

You cannot conquer the world by winning over its wickedness. —Russell's Journal.
